

Movie Abyss

Growth & Monetization Plan

Everything that changes in movie choice, scripts, titles, thumbnails and editing to get the channel monetized by the end of November 2026.

PREPARED FOR

David Alozie

DATE

14/10/2026

GOAL

YouTube Partner Program

DEADLINE

30 November 2026

How to use this PDF

- Click any section on the Contents page to jump to it.
- "Back to contents" at the bottom of every page takes you back.
- Light-blue boxes are fillable: type into them, then save the PDF.
- Tick the checkboxes as each task is done.
- Works in Adobe Acrobat Reader, Chrome, Edge and most PDF apps.

Contents

Click a line to jump to that section.

01	The plan at a glance What changes, in one page	Go ►
02	Our two promises Delivery and tools	Go ►
03	The monetization target What YouTube needs, and where we are now	Go ►
04	Movie choice How we pick movies, and the first shortlist	Go ►
05	Script How every recap is written	Go ►
06	Titles The title formula	Go ►
07	Thumbnails The thumbnail rules	Go ►
08	Editing style How every video is cut	Go ►
09	Delivery schedule Weekly uploads and the 7-week plan	Go ►
10	Weekly report Numbers we track every week	Go ►
11	Agreement Sign-off	Go ►

01 The plan at a glance

Movie Abyss's views have been low. The fix is not one thing: movie choice, titles, thumbnails, scripts, editing and delivery all improve together, starting now.

Area	Before	From now on
Movie choice	Picked without a clear system	Picked for timing and story. Posted on or near the day the movie hits streaming.
Script	No fixed style	One fixed recap style: fast, clear, the whole story with every twist, about 15 minutes.
Title	Names the movie	Sells the story: "A [hero] [does something], But [bigger twist]". No movie name.
Thumbnail	Mixed styles	One big emotional face, real movie frames, no text.
Editing	Inconsistent	Clean and cinematic: voice never stops, new shot every 3-5 seconds, quiet music.
Delivery	Late uploads	3 videos a week on fixed days, each ready 24 hours early.

Where this comes from

The system copies how a successful recap channel in the same niche works (Main Plot Recap, whose recent videos reach 60,000–211,000 views). We copy the method, not their content. Every script, title and thumbnail is our own.

02 Our two promises

These start immediately, on 14/10/2026.

1. Delivery is fixed, starting today

Delivery hasn't been good enough so far. From today, every video follows the fixed weekly schedule in section 9. Each finished video will be ready at least 24 hours before it goes live, so no publish date is missed.

2. Tools are no longer an issue

All the tools needed for scripting, voice-over, editing and thumbnails are now in place. Production will not be held up by missing software or access.

03 The monetization target

To join the YouTube Partner Program with long videos, the channel needs both of these. Fill in today's numbers from YouTube Studio.

What YouTube needs	Target	Where we are now
Subscribers	1,000
Public watch hours (last 12 months)	4,000 hours
Or instead of watch hours: Shorts views (last 90 days)	10 million

These are YouTube's long-standing requirements. YouTube can change them, so check the current numbers in YouTube Studio → Earn before applying.

What it takes, in simple numbers

4,000 hours = 240,000 minutes of watching
People watch about 6 minutes of a 15-minute recap on average
 $240,000 \div 6 =$ about 40,000 views of long videos in total

We upload about 20 long videos between 14 October and 30 November. That means an average of about 2,000 views per video, or one or two breakout videos (hits in this niche get 80,000–211,000 views). The same views bring subscribers, and Shorts add more on top.

Honest note on the deadline

November is ambitious if the channel is starting from a low base. This plan gives it the best chance. On 8 November (end of Week 4) we compare the numbers to the target and adjust the movie choices and number of uploads if we're behind.

04 Movie choice

People search for a recap in the days after a movie reaches streaming. So we pick movies for timing and story, and post on or near release day.

Before picking a movie, tick all 7:

- ☐ Timing: it arrives on streaming or digital in the next 3-14 days.
- ☐ Good story for a recap: one hero under pressure, rising danger, a twist and a strong ending.
- ☐ People will search for it: a known star, franchise, director or viral moment.
- ☐ Thumbnail moment: one frozen image that sells the whole movie.
- ☐ Not too crowded: few big recap channels have covered it.
- ☐ Fits the channel: survival, action-thriller, historical revenge or horror.
- ☐ Safe for ads: the plot isn't mostly sexual content or harm to children.

First shortlist (October-November 2026)

✓	Movie	Where / when	Why	Our publish date
☐	The Death of Robin Hood	HBO Max, 16 Oct	First pick. Dark medieval outlaw story, close to this niche's 211K-view hit.
☐	Evil Dead Burn	HBO Max, 2 Oct	Brutal horror with a family twist. Halloween demand.
☐	Insidious: Out of the Further	Digital, 6 Oct	Big franchise name, easy to search.
☐	Fall 2: Deadpoint	PVOD, 6 Oct	Sequel to a hit. Simple survival thumbnail.
☐	Beast of War	VOD (check date)	WWII soldiers on a shrinking raft.
☐	Backrooms (A24)	HBO Max, Sept	A24's biggest film. Mystery people want explained.
☐	Disclosure Day	Peacock, Oct	Spielberg blockbuster many people missed.
☐	The Drift	VOD	Arctic ice-floe survival. Little competition.

Dates come from news and streaming listings. Confirm each one on the streaming platform before scheduling. New picks are added every week.

05 Script

Every script is written in one fixed recap style, from a proper plot source (full plot summary, subtitles, or notes from watching), so nothing is guessed.

Setting	Standard
Length	About 3,000 words (around 15 minutes)
Speed	About 200 words a minute when read aloud
Chapters	8-12 chapters, one every 1-2 minutes, with plain names ("Train escape")
Ending	"And with this, the story ends right here. Do tell us in the comments how you liked this explanation. And don't forget to like the video and subscribe to the channel."

Script checklist (tick for every script):

- ☐ No intro or greeting. The first sentence starts the story.
- ☐ Opens with the most dramatic moment, then "The story goes back to..."
- ☐ Told in plain, spoken English, in the present tense ("Troy wakes up...").
- ☐ One event per sentence. The story never stops moving forward.
- ☐ Says why things matter straight away ("That means...").
- ☐ Uses real numbers from the movie: years, distances, ages.
- ☐ Clear twist lines: "And here it comes out that..."
- ☐ Covers the whole movie, including the ending. No opinions or reviews.
- ☐ Every sentence is written fresh. Nothing copied from other channels or summaries.

06 Titles

Titles stop naming the movie and start selling the story. In this niche, the most-viewed titles never include the movie name, year, actors, or the words “recap” or “explained”.

The formula

A [label for the hero] [what happens], [But / So / Where / When / Not Knowing] [bigger twist]

Examples of the pattern from the niche (how YouTube shows them, cut off):

Title	Views
A Poor Farmer Accidentally Starts a Rebellion and Leads 10,000 Men Against th...	211K
A Mysterious Ice Cream Man Turns Every Kid Into a Brutal Killer by Handing Out Free...	201K
Ex-Soldier Is Hired to Deliver a Super-Rare Human Liver, But a Cartel Wants It for Their...	80K

Title checklist:

- ☐ Starts with a label, not a name: “A Poor Farmer”, “An Ex-Soldier”, “A Loser Kid”.
- ☐ Two parts: a setup, then a bigger, crazier second half.
- ☐ Has irony or scale: an ordinary person next to a huge outcome.
- ☐ Uses one exact number (10,000 Men, 12 Hours) and one strong word (Brutal, Secretly, Entire).
- ☐ Title Case, 90–115 characters, best words in the first 70.
- ☐ Everything in it really happens in the movie. Exaggerate the feeling, never the facts.

Example: The Death of Robin Hood

“The World Calls Him a Hero, But This Dying Outlaw Knows He Was a Murderer and Gets One Last Chance at Salvation”

Written from the official synopsis. It will be updated with the real twist once the movie has been watched.

07 Thumbnails

Thumbnails become clean, cinematic and emotional, built from real movie frames, with no text. The title does the talking, and the thumbnail shows the moment the title describes.

Thumbnail checklist:

- ☐ No text: no words, arrows, emojis or logos on the image.
- ☐ One big emotional face (screaming, terrified, furious or haunted) filling 30–40% of the frame.
- ☐ 1–3 reacting characters or a crowd behind the hero, for scale.
- ☐ One hook object that makes people curious: a weapon, a monster, a strange object.
- ☐ Blood, dirt or sweat wherever the genre allows, to show what's at stake.
- ☐ Movie-poster colours: warm skin, teal or green background, deep blacks, sharp. 16:9.
- ☐ Matches the title: together they tell one story.
- ☐ Real movie frames, not AI-made faces of real actors. AI is only for mock-ups.

08 Editing style

Every video is edited in one clean, cinematic style. Keeping people watching longer is what earns watch hours.

Area	The standard
Voice	One calm, clear voice at about 200 words a minute. Never stops, always at full volume.
Footage	Movie clips that match every sentence. A new shot every 3-5 seconds .
Movie sound	Muted. Only 1-2 seconds of a real line or sound effect at big moments.
Music	Quiet, tense, royalty-free music at 15-20% volume, rising at the twist and the climax.
On screen	Clean, full-frame footage. No captions, stickers or zoom effects. A small chapter label is optional.
Shape	No intro → dramatic opening → chapters every 1-2 minutes → one-line ending.
Length	12-16 minutes, so mid-roll ads can run once monetized (8 minutes and over).
Export	1080p or 4K, 16:9, chapter timestamps in the description.

Shorts

Each long video also gets 2-3 Shorts cut from its own narrated recap: the opening hook and the biggest twist. Each one ends with a reason to watch the full video. Shorts bring new subscribers, but Shorts views don't count towards the 4,000 watch hours.

Copyright: the biggest risk to monetization

- YouTube checks recap channels for “reused content” before approving them. Our own narration over every second of footage is what makes the videos original. Clips are never uploaded without narration.
- Clips are kept short. The movie's own sound and music are never used as the soundtrack.
- New studio movies often get Content ID claims, which usually means the studio takes that video's ad money. A strike is more serious: three strikes and YouTube removes the channel.
- The copyright tab in YouTube Studio is checked after every upload, and any problem is reported the same day.

09 Delivery schedule

From 14 October: 3 long videos every week (Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday) plus Shorts. A video can move to another day to land on a movie's streaming release day.

Every video goes through the same 6 steps:

Step	What happens	Done by
1. Movie	Movie picked and streaming date confirmed	4 days before publishing
2. Script	Plot source gathered, script written and checked	3 days before
3. Voice + edit	Narration recorded, video edited to the section 8 standard	2 days before
4. Title + thumbnail	Made and checked against the checklists	1 day before
5. Ready	Uploaded and scheduled with description, chapters and end screen	At least 24 hours before
6. Check	Copyright tab, first-day views and click-through rate reviewed	1 day after

The 7-week plan (tick each week when it's done):

✓	Week	Focus
☐	Week 1 14-18 Oct	Switch everything to the new system. The Death of Robin Hood goes out on Friday 16 Oct, its streaming release day. 1-2 more videos. First Shorts.
☐	Week 2 19-25 Oct	3 videos. Halloween horror picks (Evil Dead Burn, Insidious). Compare the new titles and thumbnails with the old videos.
☐	Week 3 26 Oct-1 Nov	3 videos. More of whichever genre did best in Weeks 1-2.
☐	Week 4 2-8 Nov	3 videos. Checkpoint: subscribers and watch hours against the target. Adjust if we're behind.
☐	Week 5 9-15 Nov	3 videos. Repeat the formats of the best-performing videos.
☐	Week 6 16-22 Nov	3 videos. Push Shorts that point to the best long videos.
☐	Week 7 23-30 Nov	3 videos. Apply for the Partner Program as soon as both targets are reached.

10 Weekly report

Every week, David Alozie gets these numbers from YouTube Studio. Fill in each column as the weeks go by.

Number	Wk 1	Wk 2	Wk 3	Wk 4	Wk 5	Wk 6	Wk 7
Subscribers (total)
Watch hours (12 months)
Click-through rate %
Average view duration %
Videos on time (of 3)
Copyright strikes

What good looks like:

Number	Why it matters	Healthy level
Subscribers and watch hours	Progress towards 1,000 and 4,000	Going up every week
Click-through rate	Shows if titles and thumbnails work	Above 5%
Average view duration	Shows if the script and editing hold attention	Above 35-40% of the video
Videos on time	Our delivery promise	3 out of 3
Copyright strikes	Risk to monetization	Zero

Notes for this week:

11 Agreement

This plan starts on 14/10/2026. Delivery follows the schedule in section 9, and all production tools are in place.

Client

Name

David Alozie

Signature (type your name)

Date

Channel manager

Name

Signature (type your name)

Date